

Timey produces chemical indicators that show whether a food product has been kept in the right temperatures during its shipping.

Description

---

Timey is solving food waste by taking better control of cold-chain food transportation. We produce chemical indicators that show whether a food product has been kept in the right temperatures during its lifetime from production to the dinner table. With Timey, the producer can ensure the freshness and quality of their food during shipping.

Business Model

---

We sell indicators to food producers to help assure that their products are being handled in the right conditions throughout shipping. Indicators get attached to food from the factory and travel with it till the store shelves. We provide food safety for the producer & consumer, and we reduce food waste in a company's logistics chain by showing its weak spots.
